

I have just started a small business of perfume and soap making. Most of the ingredients I purchase from my distributor are certified organic and I will not be making any claims on the label of 'Organic Body Soap' etc. I want to make sure that I can legally list the various organic ingredients I use in the ingredient list only. Does this require further certification?

If you are not obtaining certification, not representing your product as "USDA organic," not using the USDA seal, not making any reference to the NOP regulations, you may list your organic ingredients on your product and truthfully label the product. Further certification is not required by the NOP.
